

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A remote control unit for wireless control of an electrical microdevice, such as a hearing aid or implanted medical device. An object worn or carried by a person, such as a wristwatch has a band attached thereto. A housing containing electronic circuitry of the remote control is arranged within the band. Operation elements, such as pushbuttons, are provided on the housing and project through the band or are operable through the band.